TINLEY PARK GARDEN NOTES

BROWN EYED SUSANS
Dusky daisies fleck the green, Playing each is gypsy queen; They consider duty done, Lifting faces to the sun; Reaching for the sun's caress, Radiating graciousness.

—Martha M. Wendt
The Tinley Park Garden Club are very grateful to Mr. Cool for the loan of the carriage for the parade and thank him very much, indeed.

The club wishes to thank Mr. Otto Kampe for his kindness in bringing to town his lovely white horses. Our committee was almost at a loss to find a white horse when they spied Mr. Kampe with his team out in the field.

He was very glad to let us have the horse to make our lovely float complete.

Mr. Alfred Meyer also came to our rescue the last minute and acted as a driver.

Miss Dorothy Goebel and Miss Mildred Nielsen were the lovely colonial maidens with their white wigs.

Miss Shirely Anderson held the banner to make known this lovely float belonged to the Tinley Park Garden Club.

The club thanks these maidens for assisting to compete and make our float a success, and last but not least it was Mr. Bert Fulton who brought the carriage to town.

The club appreciates the help and kindness of each and every one who so kindly donated their services.

Do not forget the date of our 4th Annual Flower Show to be held on Wednesday, August 20, 1930.

The following list of Lake Forest Gardens are open to the public on Saturday, July 12:

Mrs. Edward K. Welles, Mrs. Wm. Casselberry, Mrs. Gilbert Porter, Mrs. Knight Cowles, Mrs. John McIlvain.

Our civic chairman, Mrs. Lulu Rogers and her committee, assisted by Mr. Harry Mager deserve a great deal of praise and credit for the beautiful appearance of our park.

The park certainly looked lovely with the gorgeous bed of red geraniums in all their glory for the Fourth of July.

We hope the people of Tinley Park get as much enjoyment from the beauty of our park as the club does by fixing the park for the town.

The Garden Club meets at the home of Mrs. Henry Wyman on July 18, 1930.

Mokena Plays Joliet Team This Sunday

The Mokena Baseball team will play the St. Cyril team of Joliet at the Schiek field this Sunday afternoon. This is a speedy team and a real peppy game is looked for. All you fans come out and bring your friends.

The Mokena boys have had a run of bad luck the last two games. On the Fourth they played the Colored Leaders and lost 6 to 4. On Sunday they played the Winona Sportsman Club team of Chicago and lost 13 to 2. A week ago Sunday Mokena beat the Texacos 5 to 4. Schuldt out pitched Adamson's 9 hits. Schuldt hits to Adamson's 9 hits. Schuldt had the Texacos dazzled the entire game. Here is the lineup:

Mokena To Have Better Electric Light

Mokena is going to have better light and power service as indicated in the following letter to the editor from the assistant to the Vice-President:

Mr. Wm. Semmler, Editor, The News-Bulletin, Mokena, Illinois.
Dear Mr. Semmler:

As promised at the time of my recent visit to your office a careful study has been made of the transmission layout which serves Mokena and work is planned which will insure more reliable service.

A twelve thousand volt feeder will be constructed north of Mokena to furnish an auxiliary feed and changes are now being made in other sections of the system which will have the effect of improving service to your community. Because of the amount of work necessary the construction and rehabilitation will not be completed until about November 1st.

The proposed work is being done to carry out our policy of doing everything possible to insure reliable service to all of our patrons.

Very truly yours,

H. T. East,

Assistant to Vice-President.

Fire Cracker In Pistol Causes Bad Explosion

One Fourth of July accident occurred at Mokena. Late in the afternoon "Buddy" Hirsch son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hirsch went to the ball game at the Schiek park. He had a toy pistol and poked a fire cracker in the barrel of the gun with the fuse end in the gun. He then put a cap in the pistol and fired with the result that the fire cracker was set off and in exploding blew the pistol to pieces and also tore a deep gash in his right thumb and forefinger. He was given medical attention at once and so far he is none the worse for his exciting experience. A number of cases of powder burns were reported but not of any consequence.

Lightning Strikes

A very sharp electrical storm swept over this section Wednesday morning. Lightning struck the tower of the German M. E. church near Tinley Park and only slight damage was done.

At Mokena lightning struck a pump house at the Mokena Oil Co., plant and a small blaze ensued. A handy chemical tank put the fire out before any serious damage was done.

Peter Parenti, Jr. Dies In Phoenix, Ariz., July 4

Peter Parenti, Jr., aged 22 years, of Tinley Park, died at 12:05 Fourth of July morning in Phoenix, Arizona where he had been staying for his health since last August. His father was with him when he died. He was conscious up to the very end. He has been in poor health for three years.

His pleasing disposition and kindly ways won him a host of friends who deeply mourn his untimely passing.

Mr. Parenti was born in Hoopston, Illinois, Sept. 28, 1908. He has been a resident of Tinley Park for the past 8 years.

A constant stream of friends called at the home in Tinley Park all day Wednesday. Great numbers of beautiful offerings turned the funeral room into a veritable bower of flowers. Funeral services were held Thursday morning at 9:30 o'clock at St. Benedict's church in Blue Island with Rev. Fr. Gratain Gehrig of St. Christopher's parish of Midlothian officiating. Burial took place in Holy Sepulcher cemetery at 11th street.

The departed leaves to mourn him his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Parenti, Sr., one brother Ferdinand all of Tinley Park, Two sisters, Jessie of Englewood and Marie of Auburn Park and a legion of friends.

TINLEY Legion Notes

The Post meeting on Monday evening was addressed by representatives of Lyon & Healy. These gentlemen explained a plan for organizing and instructing a village band. The plan will be presented to other organizations in the village. A band of this kind would be of great help to our community.

The July 4th celebration sponsored by the Lions Club was a success. The Legion participated in the parade, the features being Comrade Berg and his mule little Miss Edna Archdale as Betsey Ross and Homewood Post No. 483 with their "Leaping Lena". The local post is very grateful to Homewood for this fine spirit of courtesy. A joint donation by Mayor Funk and the Post has been sent to our good neighbor.

The writer of these scribbles has been informed that the post is developing some latent vocal talent. Exact details are not available this time. However, this much is known that there are at least seven good singers in the Post. And if they do not sing at a Post meeting very soon their names will be published so that all may know who our embryo opera stars are. There is no reason why the Post should not have this kind of art among its membership. There are athletes, clerks, truck drivers, business men, barbers, even an undertaker and a minister. In fact, there is one ditch digger or to give it an army name—an engineer. So once more we say "Why not a few singers?"

A CORRECTION
The Homewood business men have donated $600 in prize money for the contest to be held in Homewood on Saturday, July 26th instead of $60 as reported last week.

Alfred Heisner In Fatal Accident

Alfred Heisner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Heisner of Green Garden was injured in an auto accident the Fourth of July near Lund's corner near Chicago street, Joliet. The accident occurred about 8 a. m. With him were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Heisner and son and also a son of his brother Otto. Mrs. Frank Heisner was driving the car. They were on their way to Wilmington to spend the Fourth.

The only way the accident can be accounted for is that one front wheel locked and the car went over. Alfred went thru the ton and was badly hurt. A possible skull fracture is feared. He also had a deep cut on his head which required 4 stitches to close. He was taken to the Silver Cross hospital. The other occupants of the car were not injured to any extent, being badly bruised and "haken up." Alfred is improving at latest reports. Otto Heisner was driving ahead and saw the accident. They stopped and gave immediate help.

Plan Tower As War Memorial

A memorial tower will be erected on a commanding site in Woodlawn Memorial Park on the Barr highway near Joliet, according to an announcement made by A. H. Bruning, real estate man, in honor of the Will County veterans of the World War.

The memorial, known as the "Tower of Memories", will be dedicated early next spring to the war veterans of Will county.

The plans for the memorial, entailing an expenditure of approximately $25,000, call for a tower of monumental design reaching 40 feet in height. From the top of the tower chimes will ring out daily as a tribute to young men who made the supreme sacrifice during the world war.

At the base of the memorial a large bronze tablet will be mounted containing the names of 5,000 Will county men who served during the world war. Two hundred and fifty of these names will be marked with a star symbolic of the supreme sacrifice.

Taps will be sounded on the chimes each evening at sundown. The chimes are among the first to be equipped with the newly designed player by means of which the programs are reproduced exactly as originally played.

"This memorial is being erected to commemorate the sacrifices of our heroes in war time and as an everlasting tribute to the young men who were killed during the world war", Mr. Bruning said.

Mrs. Braneau before her marriage was Carolina Felton. She leaves to mourn her, two sons, Henry and Frank and five daughters, Mrs. Bert Zerkle, Mrs. Charles Hawk, Mrs. Theo. Imkle, Mrs. Elizabeth Erickson, Mrs. Wm. Buerger.

Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon from the home of her son Henry, with burial in First Green Garden cemetery.

Several Thousand Attend Big Tinley 4th of July Celebration

The largest crowd that ever congregated in Tinley Park, attended the big Fourth of July celebration staged here by the Lions Club and the local American Legion Post.

People came from Homewood, Matteson, Flossmoor, Harvey, Blue Island, Midlothian, Oak Forest, Mokena, Frankfort, Orland Park and other towns to see the big parade which marched down Oak Park ave., from the north side of the village. The parade was headed by the Blue Island High School band and the Legion colors. Gaily decorated floats were the objects of much comment and interest. A number of comic floats put a decided kick into the parade.

The Leaping Lena of the Dairy Herd Improvement Association of Cook County, No. 2 was a scream. Another group that made a hit was the Amos and Andy team.

The floats and groups entered in the parade were: Tinley Park Garden Club, Amos and Andy by Boy Scouts, Homewood Comic Float, The Army Mule and Gob, Children's Float, Tinley Park R. N. A. group, Tinley Park R. N. A. float, Tinley Park Vol. Fire Dept., Beatty Lumber Co., Standard Oil Co., Bettenhausen Dairy truck, Tinley Park P. T. A., Midlothian Dairy, Fredholms Dept., Store, Midlothian, Kreis Bros. Midlothian, Elmore Poultry Farms Truck, Dairy Herd Improvement Association No. 2, Tinley Park Fresh Air Taxi, Vogt's Dept. Store, The Steinhagen Garage, Midlothian Messenger and others.

The line of march was down Oak Park avenue thru the heart of the town to the Linden Garden where the parade disbanded.

Three judges, Homer Clemens of the Blue Island Sun-Standard, Wm. Semmler of the Tinley Park Times and The News-Bulletin and F. E. Rice of Chicago, awarded the cash prizes to the following:

Under float classification, Tinley Park Garden Club, $5; second best, Tinley Park P. T. A. $2.50; under group classification, first prize Tinley Park R. N. A. $5; second best, Amos and Andy, Tinley Boy Scouts, $2.50.

Mayor William Funk of Tinley Park announced the prize winners from the band platform in the Linden Garden.

Following the parade the rest of the evening was devoted to dancing in the Saenger hall. This spacious hall was taxed to capacity on this occasion. The ticket sale was a record.

Steal Doctor's Medicine Case

Dr. L. E. Odell of Harvey reports that while he attended the dance at the Saenger hall in Tinley Park on the Fourth of July, some miscreants forced the door of his Ford coupe which he had parked half a block east of the dance hall and stole his leather doctor's grip containing surgical instruments worth $150. The grip was worth $35. One of the instruments stolen cost $35, another $45. Among the instruments taken was one, a gift from a doctor friend about 20 years ago. The theft occurred between 9 and 11:30 p. m.

This is the second time Dr. Odell has been the victim of thieves. A cord breaker, 566 dance tickets being sold. The total receipts came to $581.20.

The Blue Island High School Band also put on band concert which was much appreciated. A wonderfully fine spirit of goodfellowship permeated the entire celebration and everyone was made to feel at home. The big refreshment stand in the Linden Garden did a rushing business in supplying refreshments and hot dogs and hamburger steak sandwiches to the hungry and thirsty crowd.

All in all Tinley certainly had "its day" and everyone present certainly enjoyed themselves.

Blue Island was especially prominent in the point of attendance at the Tinley celebration as no celebration was put on at Blue Island. The following "boost" for Tinley Park appearing in the Blue Island Sun-Standard last week is of special interest at this time:

"Tinley Park is cordially inviting Blue Island to follow the Blue Island Community high school band to that worthy village where a great day is planned. Tinley Park Lions and American Legion know how to put on an ENJOYABLE celebration and often attract many Blue Island people away from the home town—even in the face of a 5 karat celebration right here. So this year it's a safe bet that the Blue Islanders will out number the Tinley Parkers at their home baliwak. There is a cordiality about Tinley Park that seems to slay you right on the back and say "Hello brother—how are you anyway! Awful glad to see you. Just make yourself at home,"—and Blue Islanders appreciate that!

"As said before, the Blue Island Community High band will play at Tinley Park. There will be a big parade at 8 p. m., and later in the evening a great dance."

Triangle Talkies

Well, we just can't keep the secret any longer, so we'll tell you all about this wonderful event to come off on August 2nd. It's on the first Saturday in August. Don't forget!

This big secret is in the form of a dance with our old friend, "Sammy Berk and his Rhythm Kings" turning the "melody of dance". We have brought Sammy back at your request so show us you meant it. Come on, a great big hand for him on August 2nd.

May be able to tell you of the final results of the "doubles" golf tournament now in progress. Watch this column for it.

The singles golf tournament will start soon. Its for the gorgeous trophy you can see on display in the window of the Dini Ice Cream parlor.

S'all till next week!

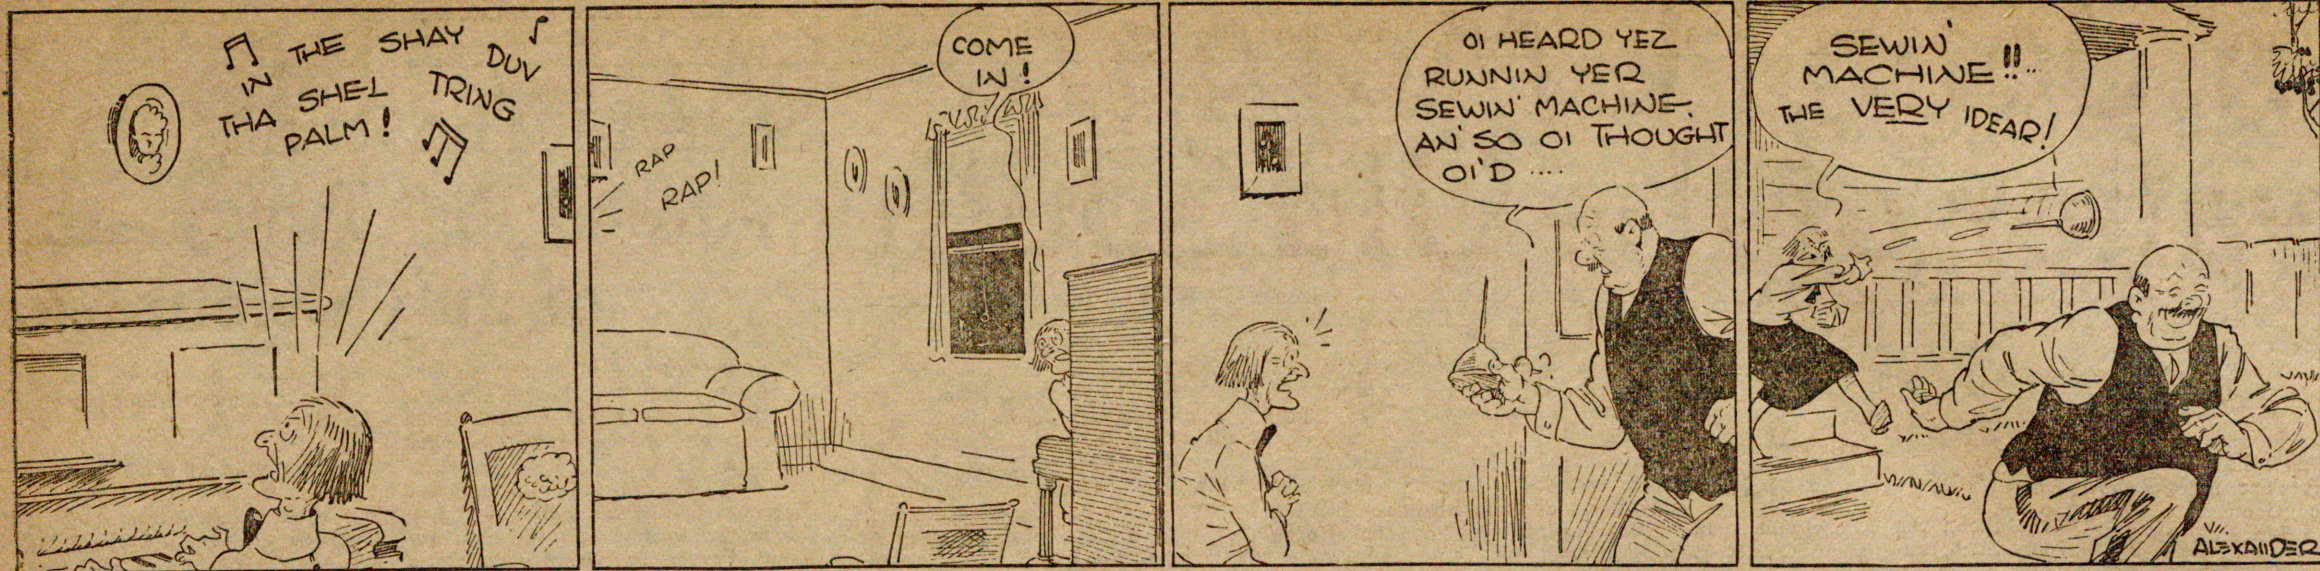

year ago a grip was stolen from him at Champaign. Dr. Odell has practiced in Harvey over 20 years. He has notified all doctors in this section not to buy the grip and instruments should they be offered for sale by anyone.

Gen. John H. Morgan, Cavalier of the Old South

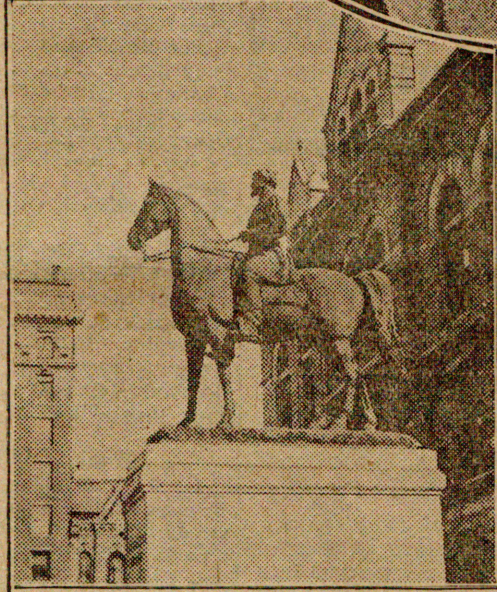

Gen. John H. Morgan

Home of Gen. John Hunt Morgan at Lexington, Ky.

General and Mrs. Morgan

Morgan Statue in Lexington Court Yard

RECENTLY there took place in Lexington, Ky., a ceremony which was the theme of many news stories in papers throughout the country and which recalled for a moment the name of one of the most picturesque figures in American history. It was the formal opening to the public of the old home of Gen. John Hunt Morgan, famous Confederate commander in the Civil war. This home, now owned by a Lexington woman, Mrs. John Johnstone, has been restored to the architectural style of antebellum days and, containing as it does, many relics of this cavalier of the old South, it now stands as a memorial to a man whose deeds marked him one of the boldest and most dashing cavalry leaders in our history.

Among those who attended the opening was a little group of aged men to whom this ceremony had a special significance. There were only 19 of them and they were the survivors of the thousands who "rode with Morgan" on those spectacular raids which made him the idol of his followers. They entered the front door, through which once rode General Morgan and his Lexington Rifles, and walked reverently through its high-ceilinged rooms, characteristically Southern in their simplicity and spaciousness. They saw the massive chandeliers, the heavy doors and the circular stairway, which are just as they were when this fine old mansion housed the gallant and debonair horseman, only mellowed and made even more beautiful by the passing years. They pointed out to each other the south gateway into the paved courtyard through which, according to local tradition, the general, pursued by his enemies, rode his beloved mare, "Black Bess," and clattered up the side steps to bid farewell to his adored mother.

John Hunt Morgan was born in Huntsville, Ala., June 1, 1826, the oldest of the six sons of Calvin C. Morgan. When he was four years old his father moved to Kentucky where he bought a farm in Fayette county. There the future cavalryman grew to manhood and at the outbreak of the Mexican war enlisted in the service, rising to the position of first lieutenant in a cavalry regiment. When the Civil war started he was a prosperous young business man of Lexington, having married the daughter of a leading merchant of that town, John W. Hunt, and being engaged in the manufacture of bagging. It is said that at first Morgan remained neutral, hoping that impending conflict would be settled amicably, but when a Federal force from Camp Dick Robinson entered Lexington he was angered by the invasion and decided to cast his fortunes with the Confederacy.

Morgan's official position in the Civil war is something of an anomaly. In that respect, it resembled the position of his homeland, Kentucky. It was one of the border states which both the North and the South tried to win to their sides and it furnished thousands of men for both armies. In it the horrors of civil conflict were shown at their worst. Families were divided and frequently brother fought against brother. It was a fertile field for guerrilla warfare and such was the nature of much of the fighting which took place upon its soil.

Morgan became such a thorn in the side of various Union commanders and gave the citizens of two Northern states such a scare by his spectacular raids that amid the blind passion and prejudice of the war, he came to be regarded in the North as a guerrilla leader. On the other hand, the South regarded him as a regular Confederate cavalryman, subject to the orders of higher Confederate officers and the government at Richmond. Certainly he was regularly commissioned as a captain of Kentucky volunteers, attached to the division of Gen. Simon B. Buckner, early in the war, as the colonel of a cavalry regiment in Gen. Braxton Bragg's army in 1862-63, and later as a brigadier-general.

One of General Morgan's men was an expert telegraph operator, who carried his instrument behind his saddle. On one occasion Morgan wanted to know if there were any Federal troops at Louisville who could be sent quickly to Bowling Green to reinforce the large force stationed there and cut him off while he was raiding behind the Union lines. General Boyle was in command at Louisville and General Granger at Bowling Green.

Reaching the main railway line between the two cities, Morgan had his telegrapher tap the telegraph line and put himself in communication with Boyle whom he informed that Morgan had been seen in the vicinity of Bowling Green and that there was danger of his attacking the town. "How many troops can you send immediately to reinforce me?" tapped out the telegrapher on his key, ending the message with the name "Granger." Back came the reply, "There are no troops in Louisville who can be made at once available." "Are there troops elsewhere who could be sent to Bowling Green? If so, where are they now?"

How soon could they be brought up to strengthen the town's defenses? was the next message from the bogus "Granger." Boyle replied, naming the places where troops were then stationed, stating their exact number and calculating the time required to transport them to Bowling Green. Having received this, Morgan sent a final telegram, thanking Boyle for giving him so much valuable information and praising him as "a very smart boy." Then he signed the message with his own name!

The most spectacular enterprise of this cavalry leader was his raid into Indiana and Ohio in the summer of 1863, a feat of daring and skill almost unequalled during the whole course of the war and one which won him even the admiration of his enemies. Boldly conceived and skillfully executed, it just missed being carried to a triumphant conclusion—through no fault of Morgan's but because a swift and unexpected rise of the Ohio river prevented his reaching safety at the last moment. It was his own idea, carried out in his own way and undertaken in spite of the disapproval of his theoretical superior officer, General Bragg.

At that time Morgan was operating in Tennessee where the military situation was far from encouraging for the Confederates. General Buckner was in East Tennessee and General Bragg's army lay around Tullahoma, confronted by General Rosecrans with a superior force. Bragg dared not detach any troops to strengthen Buckner's inadequate force, which was essential to holding his part of the state, because General Burnside was preparing an army of 30,000 men in Kentucky to move against Buckner. So Bragg decided to retreat across the Tennessee river and in order to create a diversion to cover his retreat, he decided upon a cavalry expedition into Kentucky.

Morgan was selected for the job with orders to go anywhere in Kentucky he wished and capture Louisville if possible. Morgan was willing to make the attempt but did not believe that he could hold out long enough for Bragg to accomplish his withdrawal. He proposed to carry the war into enemy territory by crossing the Ohio river, believing that the scare would not only hold Burnside in Kentucky but also reduce the pressure on Buckner and Bragg. But Bragg could not see it that way and gave the cavalry leader orders to confine his operations to Kentucky.

Morgan, however, had set his mind upon handling the expedition in his own way and when on June 11 his division of approximately 1,500 men, divided into three brigades, crossed the Cumberland and started north, his secret destination was Ohio. After a number of skirmishes with Union troops stationed at garrisons of towns along the line of march, he reached the Ohio at Bragdenburg, July 7, captured two steamboats, drove off 300 Federal militia and two Federal gunboats, and then crossed the river to Indiana. He was now in the heart of enemy territory, his little force pursued by thousands of Federals from the Kentucky camps, and facing hostile militia, populace and soldiery wherever he might turn. Descending on Corydon, he found 4,000 militia drawn up to bar his way. He dispersed them and moved on without halting through Salisbury and Palmyra to Salem. There he tapped telegraph lines and learned of the frantic efforts the Federals were making to capture him, and of the wild reports of an immense invading Confederate force which were being circulated.

From Salem he proceeded on up the Ohio, destroying and burning as he went, in an effort to cripple the transportation system and deprive the Federals of their stores. At Versailles he encountered a strong force of enemy troops sent to capture him but eluded them and continued on his way. After threatening Cincinnati, he skirted the city and reached Camp Shady. There he destroyed a large number of Federal army wagons, much forage and other supplies. Continuing east, laying waste to rail lines, he finished his dash through Ohio at Pomeroy. At that time it was estimated 25,000 Federal troops were in hot pursuit of the daring raiders.

Even then Morgan might have made his escape into Virginia, but for an unexpected rise in the Ohio that delayed the command and prevented it from crossing the river immediately. While they were compelled to wait, Federal troops and gunboats came up. The raiders pushed further up the river to another ford. Here many crossed before the pursuers caught up, and made their escape. Hemmed in by Federals, the remainder of the command split up in small groups—some escaping, some being captured. General Morgan and a large number of his men escaped, doubled back on the trail and headed toward Athens and Zanesville.

But the game was almost up. And ironically enough it "took a Kentuckian to catch a Kentuckian." For when Morgan was finally surrounded and forced to surrender near Lisbon in Columbiana county, Ohio, the man to whom he surrendered was Maj. George W. Rue of the Ninth Kentucky cavalry of the Union army, a native of Lexington, an old acquaintance of Morgan's before the war and an old adversary of his during the first two years of the war. Rue had entered the Union service as the captain of a cavalry company which he had organized and, according to his reminiscences, published in the Ohio Archaeological and Historical Society Publications several years ago, he "was kept busy chasing John Morgan out of Kentucky. Six times I drove him out of the state, on six different occasions, before the raid into Ohio when he surrendered to me on the Cubaugh farm, where the monument has been erected." That monument stands south of Lisbon and bears this inscription: "This stone marks the spot where the Confederate raider, General John Morgan, surrendered his command to Major George W. Rue, July 26, 1863, and is the farthest point north ever reached by any body of Confederate troops during the Civil war. Erected by Will L. Thompson, East Liverpool, Ohio, 1909."

After his surrender Morgan was sent to Columbus where he was imprisoned in the Ohio penitentiary. Four months later, however, he and six of his men dug through the stone floor of the dungeon in which they were confined, tunneled under the walls and, after a series of hairbreadth escapes from capture while making their way south, finally managed to reach the Confederate lines in safety. After taking part in some minor engagements in West Virginia and Kentucky he went to Tennessee and there on September 4, 1864, while stationed at a farmhouse near Greenville, Tenn., he was surrounded in the night by a detachment of Federal troops under Gen. A. C. Gillem. His presence there had been betrayed by a young woman who was living in the house. While attempting to escape a trooper shot him through the heart, thus bringing to a close his gallant and colorful career.

Wilson Merely Amused by "Cheeky" Youngster

President Hoover is said to be fully as reserved as the man he succeeded. Although people in private conversation often referred to Mr. Coolidge as "Cal," no one ever personally addressed him that way and it is said that none of Mr. Hoover's closest friends call him "Bert" or "Herb."

This was much the case with the late President Wilson, but in his case, a few old friends continued, in correspondence, to address him as "Tommy" long after he had dropped his baptismal name of Thomas.

Once, while Wilson was making a western tour, a little chap yelled "Hello, Woody."

Young America's effrontery amused Mr. Wilson. In his speech that evening he referred to it and remarked that he had no objection to being thus addressed provided it was not meant to be descriptive.

Tropical Fish's Great

Resemblance to Bird

Of all the great game fishes in the ocean near Florida, the splendid sailfish is first in interest. Although this lithe acrobat of the Gulf stream is needlessly slaughtered by thousands each year, says Nature Magazine, it still remains one of the least known of the popular tropical fishes. No one really knows where this quaint wanderer of the deep breeds, whither he goes or whence he comes. But he cruises along the Gulf stream, alone, in couples or in small schools, sometimes quite small, though well past the baby stage, one of the quaintest fish in all the world.

His querulous, down-turned mouth and large bright eyes set near its base; his long beak and high, flaunting, purple-spotted dorsal fin, which suggests the frill of some long vanished saurian, give him a strange bird-like appearance.

Not a Miracle

While drawing a bucket of water from a well on his property at Greenwich, Conn., Joseph Krom lighted a cigarette and tossed the match in the bucket. The explosion which followed consumed the contents of the bucket. He drew another bucketful and threw it on the ground and set a match to it. Again there was a brisk blaze. He summoned the fire company and an investigation disclosed that a leaking gasoline tank in a nearby factory was causing the seeming miracle.

Horseshoes Made Trouble

A curious incident happened in a sawmill at South Paris, Maine, when the saw hit something hard and spoiled all the teeth. A pair of horseshoes was found in the heart of a big pine—which was 18 inches in diameter. The tree was cut near a schoolhouse and it is figured that a generation or so ago some one slid these horseshoes around the small pine, and the tree grew over and around them.

Wonderful Camera

A German has invented a camera that will snapshot objects 250 miles away, and actually below the horizon. He claims that the bending of light rays by refraction of the atmosphere enables his camera to record scenes which have solid earth between them and his camera.

Babies will cry, often for no apparent reason. You may not know what's wrong, but you can always give Castoria. This soon has your little one comforted; if not, you should call a doctor. Don't experiment with medicines intended for the stronger systems of adults! Most of those little upsets are soon soothed away by a little of this pleasant-tasting, gentle-acting children's remedy that children like.

It may be the stomach, or may be the little bowels. Or in the case of older children, a sluggish, constipated condition. Castoria is still

When Food Sours

Lots of folks who think they have "indigestion" have only an acid condition which could be corrected in five or ten minutes. An effective anti-acid like Phillips Milk of Magnesia soon restores digestion to normal.

Phillips does away with all that sourness and gas right after meals. It prevents the distress so apt to occur two hours after eating. What a pleasant preparation to take! And how good it is for the system! Unlike a burning dose of soda—which is but temporary relief at best—Phillips Milk of Magnesia neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

Next time a hearty meal, or too rich a diet has brought on the least discomfort, try—

when you need hot water?

The tea-kettle, singing away by itself on the kitchen stove, used to be the only source of hot water. But that was years ago. Modern homes have the self-acting water heater to give them all the hot water they want—the instant a faucet is turned. Stored up in a specially-insulated tank, ready for use at all times, is enough hot water for several full-to-the-brim baths, for doing hundreds of dishes, for scrubbing an acre of floors, for shaving almost an army of men.

ONLY $5 DOWN puts a "Pittsburgh" self-acting gas-fired hot water heater in your basement. Pay the balance (plus a nominal carrying charge) monthly with your regular service statement. The cash price is $69.75 (24-gallon tank), installation extra. One of our representatives will gladly call and tell you all about this delightful hot water service. Phone your Public Service Store.

SEWER SCOOP IS CONFIRMED

In a recent issue of THE MIDLOTHIAN MESSENGER, the statement was made that the sanitary district of Chicago is making plans for a trunk and intercepting sewer in this territory. Although no other local or Chicago paper carried any news on this development, a prominent Blue Island attorney this week confirmed the report.

The full details of this plan will be presented in THE MESSENGER next week—complete details on a sanitary sewer to cost about one and one-quarter million dollars and covering the territory from 139th st. to the south limits of the sanitary district, from Dixie Highway to the R. I. & P. railroad, except the villages of Posen and Robbins.

Posen will provide for a sewer system of its own, aided by the sanitary district. As announced in a bulletin in last week's paper, the Posen sewer proceedings were stopped at the request of the village. But at the meeting of the village board Tuesday of last week, proceedings were started over again. A public hearing will be held tonight.

According to Attorney W. Otto Wielgorecki, the action was taken because of an error made by a former clerk of the village.

Between forty and fifty pupils were enrolled. The closing exercises of the school will be held at 7:30 this evening, and there will also be an exhibit of hand work. The public is cordially invited.

MIDLOTHIAN FIRE DEPT. NEWS

By R. K. Cumming

On Monday of last week the Fire Department attended a monthly meeting of the Community Fire Association at Glenwood Training school. On account of hot weather the regular business meeting was dispensed with. The students of the school put on a military drill and a band concert. Chief Wilson of Glenwood treated to a motion picture show; music, coffee and sandwiches completed the entertainment. Attendance was 108.

The next meeting will be held Monday, July 28, at Beecher, Ill. Board members are especially invited.

There were no children at the Welfare conference in Midlothian July 1.

This we think was due to two causes: one, because it rained all forenoon and two, because of the report that the McIntosh office had been sold. Many mothers thought the conference would not be held there. I am informed that the report is true. The office has been sold, but the new owner will not take possession for two months. So we can be reasonably sure that the Welfare will be held at 145th St. and Millard ave. the first Tuesday of August, and the first Tuesday of September from 10 to 12 a.m.

The Midlothian Woman's Club have appointed a committee to help with the Welfare conference; so we hope the mothers will show their appreciation by coming in larger numbers.

Flag and Pole Are Dedicated

Midlothian Post No. 691 of The American Legion dedicated a fifty foot all steel flag pole and a 6x12 ft. all wood flag to the Village on the Fourth of July.

Assisting in the dedication were members and drum corps from the Stanley Sullivan Post, members from Fort Dearborn, Homewood, and Tinley Park Posts. The principal speaker was Rudolph Shapiro, Commander Fort Dearborn Post and formerly assistant district attorney of Cook County.

The parade formed at headquarters of the Legion and marched to the Rock Island depot where the ceremony was held and thence to the playgrounds where two ball games were played.

Represented in the parade were the following merchants: Fredholms, Kreis Bros., Clarke-Hulett, Moore's Dairy, S. S. Meat Market. The Boy Scouts and the Camp Fire Girls were represented as were members of the Legion, the Base ball team, members of the Ace's and Frisco Athletic Club of Blue Island.

There has been such a demand for the game that each team has cancelled previous games to play. They expect a record-breaking crowd. Both teams are in the pink and will use the same lineup they used in the other game, so come out and root for your favorite team.

Baseball Notes

Routine Matters Occupy Board

Routine business occupied the Midlothian village board Tuesday night. The most important matter to come before the board was the enforcement of the vehicle tax ordinance. It was ordered that steps be taken at once to prosecute delinquents.

A communication from the division of highways was read, in which it was admitted that the drainage of 147th st. was unsatisfactory, but nothing will be done until a general solution of the district drainage problem is effected. The board arranged to meet with the East End Development association on the building code Wednesday night.

Attorney Harper presided in the absence of President White.

At the next meeting of the board, July 22, bids will again be opened on the two sidewalk jobs.

Gardens Water Ass'n Makes Statement

"The Board of Directors wishes to thank those who cooperated with them relative to the sprinkling law adopted and urges those that have not done so to forget their selfishness.

"Complaints have been received and if we cannot get cooperation, especially from those that are not paying for the water they use, means of enforcement will be found. "Constructive criticism is wanted. Anyone can knock.

Everything possible is being done to insure water at all times. The two or three times when there was no water since sprinkling hour started was due to breakages on the pump.

"It is hoped there will be no further cause for complaint on the part of the users.

"The 15th day of this month will mark the dead line for delinquents.

POSEN

Work has started on a gas station and barbecue stand at 144th and Western ave. It is said that the building will be of brick, about 32x 65 feet.

Water was turned off in the Robertson's subdivision Tuesday.

Mrs. J. E. Barnes and sons of Dallas and Bobbie of Avers ave., visited friends in Chicago Tuesday.

J. E. Barnes is very busy completing his home on Avers ave.

ROBBINS MAN SHOT FRIDAY

John Mosley, former chief-of-police of Robbins, was killed by Joseph L. Williams, 134th and Kedzie, at 7:30 Friday night. A coronor's jury returned a verdict of justifiable homicide at St. Francis hospital Saturday afternoon. Colored witnesses thanked the jury and Williams was freed.

According to testimony there had been bad blood between the two men for some time, and trouble developed Friday night. Williams, who has been in the dining car service of the New York Central for 20 years, was grabbed around the neck by Mosley when he fired the first shot; the other two were fired from the ground. Self defense was the plea.

Robbins police say that Mosley had been but recently released from jail on charges of beating a white woman at a resort. His body bore numerous scars of bullet wounds and razor cuts.

The deceased leaves one brother Milton. He was not married.

Robbins Police in Fracas Here Saturday

An argument between Harry Holman, Robbins policeman, and Walter Henstraw of Chicago in front of Kreis Bros., Saturday night, drew a crowd which blocked traffic and caused much excitement.

From a maze of conflicting reports it appears that Walter Henstraw drove onto 147th from Lawndale without stopping causing Officer Holman to drive into the ditch. The latter followed him to Kreis Bros., stopped him, and in the ensuing argument, struck the lad.

Both were taken to the Blue Island station by Chief Terry. Neither swore out a complaint, so the matter was dropped.

It is reported that the officer's companion, Policeman Foley, agreed that the damage done the boy's shirt and car would be settled.

Week End Accidents Are Minor

Several accidents occurred over the week-end, but none were of a serious character.

A car driven by Leo Natonski, Cicero, lost a tire at 147th and Abbottsford rd. at 3 p. m., Sunday causing the car to leave the road and turn on its side in the ditch. The axel was torn from the chassis. Kreis Bros., towed in the car.

A Diamond T truck dove through the Rock Island barricade and into a ten foot ditch at 11 p. m. Friday night at Oak Forest. The truck from Tinley Park, was carrying ten children, but none were injured. Clarke-Hulett towed it out Saturday morning.

On the afternoon of the 4th a motorist drove into a flagpole in front of Carney's sending the pole through the $85 plate glass window.

Republicans to Meet with Elmore

Bremen township Republicans resolved to take active steps Monday night to have all of Bremen township included in the sanitary district of Chicago. It was pointed out that half of Midlothian, most of Crestwood and all of Oak Forest outside the institution would be left without sewage facilities unless steps were taken to get into the district.

When the committee from Midlothian, headed by K. Sidell meets with President Howard Elmore of the Sanitary District a delegation from the township will accompany the committee.

Richard White Not So Ill As Reported

Rumors have gone around that Richard White is seriously ill; that he had resigned his position with the Country club and would resign as village president.

An intimate friend of Mr. White's stated Tuesday night that Mr. White has merely taken a leave of absence and has no intention of resigning from office. His condition is not serious.

Cases To Be Heard Wednesdays Judge Frank Stuart announces that village speeding cases will be heard on Wednesdays at 147th st. and Crawford ave., instead of Saturdays as heretofore.

Comment: The Golden Rule fits admirably into the life of every one almost every moment of every day. The very fundamentals of our social and business standards are based with a psychological effect upon the true meaning and intent of this wonderful passage.

After this manner therefore pray ye: Our Father which art in heaven, Hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors. And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil: For Thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, forever. Amen.—Matthew 6:9-13.

A LIONS CLUB

FOR MIDLOTHIAN

Midlothian needs a "booster" organization—and needs it badly. We all know that organized, concerted action is much more effective than the scattered attempts of individuals.

Consider a few of the needs. On all the highways hereabout are markers, so and so many miles to this place or that—Midlothian has but one, at 147th and Western—and that is highly inaccurate. It reads Midlothian three miles, whereas it is but one mile to the Midlothian boundary.

The Legion is doing splendid civic work. There should be a Lion's club to work with it. Such a combination would put over Fourth of July celebrations and the like with a bang. Those who have most at stake in a community are the merchants. They should have an organization of their own—for their sake and the community's good. Let's have a Lions club, a Rotary or just a plain Business Men's Association.

A WORD OF APPRECIATION

Particularly pleasant has been the contacts of the management of this paper with the people of Oak Forest. The churches have repeatedly brought news to our office; several individuals are saving news and personal and turning them in.

The people of Oak Forest realize the importance of a community newspaper and are doing all they can do aid it.

We appreciate their support and extend our thanks.

Recent additions to the radio telegraph service from the United States are of special interest now as indications that America is striving to hold her own in a radio telegraph leadership, which is made more difficult to maintain by the British merger of radio telegraph and cables. The announcement that R.C.A. Communications, Inc., will begin work at once to establish an inland telegraph network in fourteen strategic cities in the United States, with plans for 29 inland stations, as wave lengths are granted, also has added to the country-wide attention to this modern means of communication.

Within the last few weeks three new direct international circuits have been announced by W. A. Winterbottom, Vice-President in charge of Communications of R.C.A. Communications, Inc., to Spain, Syria and Costa Rica.

Several reductions of rates for radio telegraph service also have been announced recently by Mr. Winterbottom. It was the competition of radio telegraph which forced a reduction of cable rates by which users have saved $60,000,000 in the last eight years.

THE NEW FORD

MADE economically

SOLD economically

FINANCED economically

LOW COST is only one of the savings in buying a new Ford. You also save on the cost of financing, on any accessories you may want and on the cost of operation, replacement parts and service.

The economies in distribution are just as important as economies in manufacture in keeping down the price of the Ford. The money you pay goes into increased value for the car. It is not wasted in excessively high selling costs.

On the basis of performance and the inherent worth of every part, the new Ford is unquestionably the greatest dollar for dollar value ever offered in automobiles.

Mothers Trip To France Big Task

By September of this year 5,000 gold star mothers and widows will have completed the journey to and from the cemeteries in France and England where their loved ones have been laid to rest. During the pilgrimage these women are being personally escorted and cared for by the Quartermaster's Department of the Army. Congress literally handed the Department the money and said, "Go and do the job!" How the Department is engineering the expedition is a story for history.

The true extent of the tremendous task encountered in handling this pilgrimage of gold star mothers and widows is modestly described by Major Louis C. Wilson, Q. M. C., writing in the June number of the Quartermaster Review, official publication of the Quartermaster's Department.

"History fails to show that any nation at any time ever undertook before a pilgrimage of this kind of magnitude, regardless of the extent of its appreciation for lives laid down and for the dear ones left behind to mourn," says Major Wilson.

"These gold star mothers and widows," the Major continues, "will, in their journey to and from this American sacred ground in foreign lands, be truly guests of our grateful nation; for the plans, both in major items and in the smallest details, contemplate their complete convenience and comfort."

Many of these women are past middle age, more than few are not in the best of health and many have been overcome with emotion, due to the nature of the expedition. To see that these women are properly cared for on their journey has necessitated a vast series of constant, individual, personal services on the part of the men who have been detailed to look after them. It has become a job as momentous as it is noble, and it has required all the diligence and efficiency of the organization set up to perform it. Major General John L. DeWitt, the Quartermaster General, has called it "the biggest job the Department has attempted since the World War."

To afford an idea of the demands placed upon the Quartermaster's Department in handling the expedition, Major Wilson, in his article, takes a typical war mother and follows her movements from the time she leaves home until she returns. "Her name is Mrs. Brown and she lives in the little western town of Smithville." The Major describes how Mrs. Brown is planning her trip, to be taken entirely at the expense of the government. She has been instructed as to what kind and amount of luggage she should carry, and has received a letter telling her when her boat sails.

Before she leaves, the Major explains, the postman brings Mrs. Brown her railroad ticket and Pullman (lower berth) reservation to New York, together with a check to cover her meals and traveling expenses while en route. She will have change trains at Chicago, but there she will be met by an agent of the railroad, who will escort her and see that she makes connections. Upon her arrival in New York, an officer of the Regular Army will take her to her hotel, where her room, meals and high class accommodations of all kinds have been provided by her federal host. Here she will rest for two days in preparation for her long journey across the "big pond."

Escorted to the boat after her rest she finds that cabin class accommodations have been provided for her and her baggage already is in her stateroom. Every service has been extended for her convenience; if at any time on the entire trip she should become ill, medical and nursing attention will be immediately available.

Mrs. Brown's son lies in the Meuse-Argonne American cemetery in France, so she will disembark at Cherbourg, traveling from there to Paris, where first class hotel accommodations have been arranged for her. After a day of rest, she and the other women in her group, accompanied by officers of the Regular Army, will attend ceremonies, such as the placing of a wreath upon the tomb of France's unknown soldier.

From Paris, Mrs. Brown will move her headquarters to a town near the cemetery she is to visit. Each day for a week she will visit the grave of her son and those of the sons of thousands of other American mothers. After a stay of about 14 days in France she will depart for home, the same diligent and personal care being accorded her that she was shown on the outward trip. Multiply by 5,000 the tasks and services performed for Mrs. Brown and an adequate conception is gained of what this gigantic undertaking means to the Quartermaster's Department.

"But," writes Major Wilson, "above all these essential evidences of a nation's solicitude for the mothers and widows who will be able to participate in these pilgrimages, there will be the outstanding fact that each one was afforded an opportunity to visit and see the last resting place of one who to her was the greatest hero of them all. What a golden field of memories in reflecting upon the loved one who served and fell in serving!"

Friendship Is Worth Keeping

WHEN friends move away to distant cities, you can carry on your friendship by telephone. You may not be able to see each other so often but you can "voice visit" whenever you want to.

A hundred miles or so is no bar to friendship. You can still have the same pleasant chats you used to have when you were neighbors. Additional distance does not lessen the quality of telephone service.

Try calling that friend today. You will be agreeably surprised at the Speed, Clearness and Inexpensiveness of Long Distance telephone service.

In the midst of everything the Centurion stood ruthlessly through the heart of the convoy, loosing her broadside batteries at intervals to heighten the existing consternation. The frigates, responding to frenzied signals from the flagship, finally gave chase, but by the time they had discovered the whereabouts of the privateer the fog blanketed her, and Fellowes changed his course to due south. He saw no more of the convoy, although in the morning he picked up one of its trailers, a little Scotch brigantine, which was so crank a sailor that he burned her.

The following week, cruising backward and forward in wide loops across the track he expected Chater to take, he spoke a Charleston privateer schooner, driven into these latitudes by a storm the Centurion had avoided. Her master had tracked the brig's course, but had seen nothing of the True Bounty, so Fellowes turned northward again into a region of frequent fogs, where the cold was biting and ice froze on the ratlines, until the men could scarcely find a footing when they went aloft.

Headwinds drove him back, and in more moderate latitudes a pair of fast thirty-eight gun frigates, evidently one of the patrols on the watch for the hard-hitting Yankee men-o'-war of the same class, chased the Centurion two days' sail to the southward. Having dodged his pursuers, Fellowes caught a smart Plymouth snow, the Sprightly Jean, loaded with Jamaica rum, a cargo which Joshua could sell at a ready profit in the state of the New York market. He depleted his crew to man out the prize, and again pointed the brig's bow north.

Certain of the crew grumbled at this departure from the trade-routes. But Fellowes held on his course to the Fifties, held on until he was convinced Chater had not ventured so harsh a latitude.

Driving southeast, they struck the outbound track of the West Indian convoys, and snatched a sassy, six-hundred-ton ship, the Mary Carroll, of London, from under the guns of a raze and a thirty-two-gun frigate. Conflicting airs permitted the Centurion to make off with the prize. Cuffee's snap-shooting with the Long Tom diminishing the frigate's ardor for the chase. A sweet prize, the Mary Carroll; her strong-box held ten thousand pounds in gold, and her holds were full of fancy goods and kickshaws for the spoiled wives of planters. Fellowes put ten men and a prize-master aboard her, and dispatched her for New York, after shifting the coin to the Centurion.

There was no more grumbling, now that the brig steered east by south for the trade-routes to southern Europe and the Mediterranean. The rigid blockade of American ports seemed to have released British merchantmen from their earlier dread of the Yankee privateers, and these southerly seas almost swarmed with shipping. The Centurion captured a small Canton trader, the Pembroke, of Bristol, and the very next day ran down the Jessie brig, of Falmouth, bound for the Gold coast with trade goods.

Simply as a privateering enterprise, the cruise had been successful up to this point, but Fellowes was perturbed by the failure of his main objective. He had come to sea, first of all, to catch the True Bounty, and the True Bounty had disappeared as completely as the Flying Dutchman sailors said was forever trying to round the Cape of Good Hope—and forever disappointed by headwinds blown against him by an outraged Divinity.

"The course is southeast by east," he announced to Breed, who relieved him. "We'll follow it until we strike one of the Gibraltar patrol, I'll cruise 'twixt here and the latitude of Cadiz."

And they zigzagged westward, now nor'west, now west by nor', now west, now west by south, now so'west. The third day, an hour past sunrise, a thin hail drifted down from the main-top.

"Sail ho! Fower p'int's to sta'b'd." Spencer, officer of the deck, summoned Fellowes, who tumbled out of his bunk, half-dressed. One look through his glass, and he sped a man forward to rouse Cuffee.

"Take the glass," Fellowes directed. "Can you make out that sail? Is she the True Bounty?"

"Cuffee don't wan' no glass, Mars'r. Fellowes. Dat him Chater ship."

The jagged white teeth glistened in the cold sunlight.

"Oh, my aunt! Now we shoot him Long Tom, mars'r. Now we shoot him plenty hard."

Fellowes' lips tightened. He strove to reconcile the rising floods of exultation and sorrow, of triumph and foreboding, that choked him emotionally.

"But shoot carefully," he warned. "We may require to cripple a mast, but I'll have no killing—if it can be avoided."

"Yah, mars'r. Cuffee know. We don't hunt him pitty ill Missee. But him Chater—"

The immense black hands, free of the swaying ratlines, opened and closed, crooked and slashed.

"But why should you hate Chater?" Fellowes questioned.

hate him, mars'r. Yo' see! Cuffee kill him plenty quick."

"Not save I bid you," Fellowes cautioned sternly, descending to the deck.

A dangerous force, this hatred he reflected. A disease which seeped from one heart to another. But a smoldering glow burned in his blue eyes, and his jaw squared aggressively. No moment for sentiment. This was the day of his vengeance, the day he had awaited for months. Ah, but why should the savor of it be bitter in his mouth?

He remembered Joshua's parting advice. Hate! Hate enough, and all would be simple. Hate every one of your enemies, aye, every one linked with them. Hate 'em root and branch. And a mighty wave of resentment swamped his spirit. Resentment against Joshua, against Ben, against Chater, against—against—He clawed open his neckcloth so feverishly that his officers, busy though they were, regarded him perplexedly. Aye, against her! Above all, against her!

She, who consorted with the nation's enemies, who intrigued with Wellington and God alone knew what other British statesmen, who entertained Collishaw's suit, who had not lifted a finger to save him from being flogged! Why shouldn't he hate her? She merited nothing from him. She, whose lover was the man who had whipped him! She, who had accepted a visit from this man after their lips had met that last night on the True Bounty!

"Well, Naow," He snarled, "Murdered Me, Ain't Ye?"

Something swelled up in his throat, hot, suffocating. Hate? Aye, hate! "Run out that Long Tom," he ordered hoarsely. "A shot betwixt his masts, Cuffee."

Chater had the weather gauge, and maneuvered expertly to make use of the advantage; but the Centurion could sail two knots to the True Bounty's one, and a couple of round-shot between his masts seemed to convince him of the hopelessness of his plight. He lay to while the brig overhauled him and rounded his stern in position to rake, Fellowes dominating her crowded decks, his slight figure taut with repressed energy.

Above, on the lofty poop of the True Bounty, Chater glowered sullenly, beside him Ben Inglepin, an expression of well-nourished resentment clouding the merchant's chubby countenance. Cara, muffled in a great coat of fur, clung to her father's arm. There was curiosity in her glance, but no fear; and as often before, Fellowes was constrained to admit a grudging measure of respect for her.

The Centurion came back, with a din of flapping canvas, and not waiting to be hailed, Inglepin bawled angrily:

"What is this that you do, Captain Fellowes? You have reason to know this vessel, D'you not see the colors she flies?"

"I'm not assured you have a justifiable claim to that flag's protection."

Disease Germs Cannot Live in Mother's Milk

Scientists have known for some time that babies fed on mother's milk were protected in some mysterious fashion from various diseases such as whooping cough, measles, diphtheria and the like. Now it appears that the mother's milk actually has the power of killing disease germs. Dr. Friedrich Schlaeppli, bacteriologist at Berne, Switzerland, has experimented with milk from nursing mothers and found that the milk has this bactericidal power to a very high degree. If the milk is kept at a mean temperature this power may be demonstrated for sixty hours or more. Such bacteria as get into it are at least very much retarded in their development if not actually killed. The milk is even able to destroy bacteria which do not normally occur in it. Boiled milk has not this power. Doctor Schlaeppli has succeeded in filtering milk, obtaining a clear greenish liquid which contained albumin but no fat. The germs naturally contained in the milk stayed back with the fat, but the power to kill bacteria remained in the clear filtrate. This was proved by adding germs to the filtrate, which destroyed them.

Advance in Photography

Daylight screens have been developed to a point where it is possible to project pictures on them in the diffused daylight of a room with thoroughly satisfactory results. To do this requires projection from the rear of the screen. Darkness is required back of the screen between the projector and screen.

SEASON'S TREND IS LACEWARD; PEASANT PRINTS NOW FAVORED

THIS is a style-wise woman who, planning her best gown, the frock she would hold in readiness for smart teas, receptions, dinner parties and similar dress-up occasions, turns her thoughts laceward, for lace continues to hold the world of fashion under its magic sway.

When it comes to giving femininity its loveliest expression, lace has ever had a way and a lure all its own. Realizing this, designers have so completely yielded to the persuasions of way if not quite to the short lace sleeves.

Pictureque Peasant Prints.

Should dealers marvel at a sudden rush for red and white, blue and white, or red, white and blue bandanna handkerchiefs, the blouse sketched at the top to left in lower picture and many more like them offer a perfectly good "reason why."

lace, we are seeing most everything made of it this season, not only frocks and tailored suits, wraps and the blouse, but even our hats, and our gloves (which are lace mitts) bespeak the lavish use of this fascinating medium.

The handsome gown pictured stresses the potency of lace as a beauty factor in the arraying of the fair sex. A very conservative model this, but one of elegance down to the slightest detail. The exquisite black bemberg lace which fashions this gown is as filmy as the most delicate cobweb, therefore showing up to advantage the handsome foundational slip of satin over which it is posed. Ornamented only by a glittering buckle at the waistline, this frock stands forth in the "rich, not gaudy" class.

Simple classics of quiet elegance such as here pictured, tell but part of the story of lace, for the program includes many types which are simply thrilling in their wealth of romance each shoulder—just as easy as that, was this cunning blouse fashioned.

And the "shorts" worn by the figure seated on the sandy beach, according to the sketch below, well, they are just that fashionable you will find them displayed in the very smartest of shops.

The cleverly contrived sports ensemble in the picture worn by Mary Nolan, one of filmland's beauties, works handsome silk peasant print into a stunning costume. As a matter of fact this group merely suggests what designers are doing this season with these vivid prints.

There's the new beach costumes, made of peasant print for instance—a very, very full swirling swishing skirt belted tight into the waistline, a white cotton "shirt" or embroidered peasant blouse, over which poses a long sleeved bolero of the print, and crowning joy of all a square of the print tied bandanna fashion or gypsy fashion or "Southern mammy" style and picturesque detail. Their colorings are entrancing while their angel sleeves and novel cape arrangements, their flowing draperies and multitudinous flounces bespeak the very poetry of emotion.

At this moment, the all-white lace frock stands to the very fore of fashion's stage.

It seems fashionists are of the opinion that the lace vogue cannot be overworked, their enthusiasm carrying to the point of creating ensembles which top the lace gown with a hat also of lace, with lace mitts reaching half about the head—they are the rage for outdoor wear where fun flourishes at the water's edge.

As to these skirts they are often a case of "now you see it, now you don't see it." It is just this way: they are the new wrap-arounds which can be unfastened, revealing the bathing suit underneath. Removed, these skirts of peasant print or bright cotton awning stripes become automatically either beach capes or beach muffs, depending upon the whim of the wearer.

Feen-a-mint FOR CONSTIPATION

Strategists Plan for

Large Scale Inundation

The story of how the Dutch, in the days of the prince of Orange, opened the dikes and flooded the country to drive off the Spanish invaders is well known. The story of how the Allies did the same in this last war to hold back the Germans for a few precious weeks is also well known. Now the French ministry of war plans to make inundation a regular part of their defense at the north.

Before, when the dikes have been opened, it was only as a last resort, because land flooded by salt water is rendered sterile for years, so that only the greatest necessity would force the French to open the gates to the seas.

However, they plan to build a line of dikes and levees that will permit mixing salt water with fresh water, so that the land will be fit for cultivation sooner.

This new system would allow flooding the land at any time and in a very short period of time. Army maneuvers this fall will include manipulation of the existing locks.

Blind People in Protest

About 5,000 people who carried posters they could not read, walked slowly along the main street of The Hague, Holland, recently. Wherever they passed, laughter died, and spectators were surprised by the odd spectacle. Those 5,000 persons were blind. "We, too, want our place in society," read one of the posters; and another, "Compulsory schooling for the blind child." The blind members of the Work for Invalids association wished to stir the public and the government into action on various bills that are to provide for blind persons in Holland.

Another Einstein Theory

Professor Einstein's theory of life, he expresses thus: "Never forget that the fruits of our work are not final in themselves. Production is meant to ennoble and make our lives easier, to give our lives a touch of beauty and refinement. Never should we allow ourselves to be degraded into mere slaves of this thing we call production."—American Magazine.

Unfortunate Soldiers

No British officers were shot for cowardice during the World war, according to the statement of the war ministry, which added that 264 soldiers were shot for desertion, 18 for cowardice, 2 officers for desertion and one officer for murder and desertion.

Be Boon to Mankind

"What's your husband trying to invent now?" asked the neighbor. "An anti-skid soap that you can step on in the bathtub without taking a flop," sighed the wife.

Self-Expressions

Expert says a golfer's individuality shows most in his putting. Or in his remarks as he continues putting. —Arkansas Gazette.

All the Same Now

STATE CAPITOL NEWS

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson delivered an address on "The Great Midwest" before the twenty-second annual conference of governors in Salt Lake City, Utah. Governor Emmerson declared that diversification of industry must be given credit for no small part of the marvelous development of the great midwest during the past 25 years and predicted even greater progress for the next quarter of a century.

"While the past quarter of a century has witnessed an unexpected development, the next 25 years will write a story that we of today can hardly visualize. Today the great railroads of the nation converge in this territory, ribbons of concrete reach out to every section of the nation, while from Chicago airlines point north, south, east and west.

"The prosperity of any section depends in a large measure upon its transportation, and to these three major methods, we are now adding a fourth—that of water."

Governor Emmerson referred to the canalization of the Ohio, the completion of the Illinois waterway in the near future with the aid of funds appropriated by congress and the development of the upper Mississippi and the Missouri rivers, to which President Hoover has pledged himself.

Governor Emmerson's address was broadcast over a national radio hookup.

Under the authority of the resolution passed by the house and senate, Gov. Louis L. Emmerson has appointed five members of the committee of 15 whose duty is to prepare an explanation for the public of the proposed tax amendment that will be voted upon in November.

The five members appointed by Governor Emmerson are:

Harrison B. Riley, chairman of board, Chicago Title and Trust company, Chicago; Victor A. Olander, secretary Illinois Federation of Labor, Chicago; Harry A. Wheeler, chairman of board, First National bank, Chicago; Sam H. Thompson, president American Farm Bureau Federation, Quincy; Theodore R. Gerlach, president Gerlach, Barklow Manufacturing company, Joliet.

The committee of five house members appointed by Speaker David E. Shanahan are:

Representative David Hunter, Jr., Rockford; William G. Thon, Chicago; C. A. Bruner, Pontiac; Alexander Wilson, Cairo; John P. Devine, Dixon.

The remaining five of the committee of 15 are to be appointed from the members of the senate by Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling.

Maj. George W. Ford, custodian of Camp Butler National cemetery near Springfield for the past 24 years, will retire on August 31. His successor has not been appointed. After the Civil war, Major Butler served in Indian wars and in the Spanish-American war. He is eighty-two years old.

The state of Illinois, through the department of public welfare under the direction of Rodney H. Brandon, treated and instructed 55,827 patients, inmates and pupils in state institutions for the unfortunate, during the year ending June 30, 1929.

Election officials of the state met in Decatur June 25, with the state election commission to consider changes in the state election laws. The state commission is preparing a report to the 1931 legislature and will present drafts of proposed legislation to make the election laws more effective. Members of the state commission are Judge Edmund K. Jarecki and Gen. Milton Foreman of Chicago, and Judge James S. Baldwin, Decatur. Meetings of the commission were held in Mt. Vernon and East St. Louis later in the week.

Mrs. E. Pearl Warwick, Champaign, has tendered her resignation as examiner of small loan agencies, division of small loans in the department of trade and commerce, Director Leo H. Lowe has announced. The resignation was effective as of July 1. Mrs. Warwick is succeeded by Glen E. Dewey, Chicago. Mrs. Warwick is to tour Europe this summer and later will take up her duties as director of the women's department of the Household Finance corporation, the largest small loan company in America.

On Decoration day 6,500 automobiles drove through Starved Rock park, Director H. H. Cleveland of the state department of public works and buildings has announced. During the month of May 16,900 persons signed the register at Fort Chartres, near Prairie du Rocher, in extreme southern Illinois. These figures indicate the growing popularity of Illinois state parks.

Miss Harriet M. Skogh, superintendent of the general division of the Illinois State library, was named president of the National Association of State Librarians, succeeding Louis J. Bailey of Indianapolis, Ind., state librarian. The election was held in connection with the state librarians' conference and the American Library association convention in San Francisco and Los Angeles. Miss Georgia L. Osborne, state historical librarian; Miss Anna Price of library extension division, and Miss M. Norton of archives division also attended the convention.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson signed all but 11 of the more than 30 measures enacted at the special session of the Fifty-sixth general assembly for the financial relief of Chicago and Cook county. The remaining 11 bills will be permitted to become law without the governor's signature. They authorize more than $32,000,000 in bond issues without referendum. Governor Emmerson in announcing his refusal to sign the bills declared that he was apposed to bond issues which do not provide a referendum. However, he pointed out that the consequences of vetoing the relief measures would be so appalling that he was unwilling to assume the responsibility for such a course of action.

State and federal authorities engaged in barberry eradication in southern Illinois reported that bushes of the plant have been found in a number of southern Illinois cities. In each case they had been planted for ornamental purposes or had reproduced from these plantings. Black stem rust, a parasitic plant which attacks growing grain with destructive results, lives on the plant during one stage of its life cycle in the spring. Losses to all grain in Illinois, resulting from black stem rust, average about $2,275,000 annually, according to federal statistics.

In previous issues of State Capitol News we have given some facts about the lives of John Mason Peck, clergyman and educator, and Edward Coles, second governor of Illinois—two of the names inscribed on the Centennial building. The third is Nathaniel Pope, first territorial secretary of Illinois, to which office he was appointed in 1809. In 1816 he was elected territorial delegate to congress, where he was instrumental in securing the passage of the act authorizing the formation of a state government. Through his efforts the northern boundary of Illinois was fixed at lat. 42 degrees, 30 seconds, north, instead of the southern head of Lake Michigan; thereby adding 14 additional counties to the state. Nathaniel Pope was born at the Falls of Ohio, which is now Louisville, Ky., and died in St. Louis, Mo., January 23, 1850.

As a part of the state-wide campaign recently inaugurated by Chief Walter L. Moody of the state highway police to make the state's highways safer, a systematic drive against drivers of "one-eyed" automobiles is being made. Drivers of cars with but one light functioning will be stopped and directed to the nearest garage by highway police; if they prefer to go to another garage, they will be permitted to do so and given a ticket to appear for inspection of lights later. This ticket will be torn up if inspection shows that the lights of the violator's automobile are functioning properly. But, should the violator fail to appear, a warrant will be issued for his arrest.

Completion of paving between Fulton and Mayfield, Ky., has opened an all-concrete short route from Illinois points to Memphis, Tenn., according to an announcement from Metropolis. Routes No. 1 and 45 lead to the Metropolis-Paducah crossing of the Ohio river. Previously most motor traffic to Memphis and nearby points crossed to the west side of the Mississippi at St. Louis or Cairo.

At the close of the special session of the state legislature Honorable M. P. Rice of Fulton county was the recipient of a beautiful watch and chain, the gift of his Democratic colleagues, as a token of the esteem in which he is held. Expressions of regret that Mr. Rice would not be a member of the next general assembly and appreciation of the service he has rendered as a member of the house were voiced by the leaders of both parties.

Entries from the leading stables of the country have been received for the first running of the Horse Review Futurities at the Illinois State fair, August 16-23. The three classics—the two-year-old trot, the three-year-old trot and the three-year-old pace—have attracted some of the fastest harness horses in the United States. Purses for the winners total $14,000 with supplementary awards for the breeders of the champions.

The largest and most comprehensive rivers and harbors bill ever formulated has been passed by both the national house and the senate. The measure includes provision for the completion of the Illinois waterway by the federal government at a cost of $7,500,000. The project, estimated to cost nearly $40,000,000, was begun by the state of Illinois and carried as far as available funds permitted. Gov. Louis L. Emmerson and other state officials have made trips to Washington in the interest of this legislation. Congressman William E. Hull, Peoria, is a member of the rivers and harbors committee, and has been one of the staunchest advocates of the waterway measure.

The Camp Grant Artillery Range measure, which provides for the state to acquire as much land as it can for $600,000 for the range, to be located near Camp Grant, passed both houses at the special session of the fifty-sixth general assembly and received the signature of Gov. Louis L. Emmerson.

The state department of conservation authorized Gov. Louis L. Emmerson to do some hunting by issuing to him resident hunting license No. 1 for the 1930 season.

JACOB, A SELFISH MAN, TRANSFORMED

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 25:29-34; 28:18-22; 29:13-20; 35:1-4, 18.
GOLDEN TEXT—For what is a man profited if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul?
PRIMARY TOPIC—Learning to Be Unselfish.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Learning to Be Unselfish.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Does It Mean to Be Honest?
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Learning from Experience.

I. Jacob's Birth (25:21-26).

In answer to Isaac's prayer, a seed was given unto him. Before Jacob's birth God revealed unto Rebekah the fact that he should have the place of pre-eminence. "The elder shall serve the younger." In this God reversed the ordinary law concerning the position of the elder son. The act of taking hold of Esau's heel as he was born, indicated Jacob's nature. The name Jacob means "supplanter."

II. Jacob's Schemes (25:27-34; 27:1-29).

1. He secured Esau's birthright (25:27-34).

It was right for Jacob to have the birthright since it was according to God's plan as revealed to Rebekah, but his scheme to get it was reprehensible. He took advantage of a brother's weakness to drive a sharp bargain.

2. Secured his father's blessing (27:1-29). (1) Was requested to get venison for his father. (2) Rebekah's scheme (vv. 5-33). It was God's plan that Jacob should be at the head, but he did not need the sin of Jacob and his mother to bring it about.

III. Jacob's Flight to Haran (ch. 28).

Jacob's deceit and cunning got him into trouble. He was compelled to flee from his outraged brother. He now began to reap what he had sown.

1. Jacob's vision at Bethel (28:10-15).

Jacob not only had to flee to save his life, but he had to leave home and mother. When night overtook him, he was obliged to sleep in a field with a stone for a pillow. It was under such circumstances that the Lord gave him the wonderful vision at Bethel. (1) He saw a ladder reaching from earth to heaven (v. 12). Jesus Christ is the ladder, connecting earth and heaven for us (John 1:51). (2) He saw angels of God upon the ladder (v. 12). These angels were divine helpers to render needed assistance along life's way. (3) The Lord standing above the ladder (vv. 13-17). To show Jacob that the ladder did not reach merely into space God appeared and talked with him. a. He declared that He was the God of Abraham and of Isaac, thus assuring Jacob that the same favor that was over his fathers was over him (v. 13). b. He renewed the covenant as to the land. Though Jacob was now fleeing from the land, the covenant would not fail. (v. 13). c. He assured him of a numerous seed (v. 14). d. The divine presence with Jacob (v. 15). Though he had sinned, God was with him. e. Jacob should be brought again into the land (v. 15).

2. Jacob's vow (vv. 18-22).

His vow included three things. (1) Dedication of himself to God (v. 12). (2) Establishment of worship (vv. 18, 19). (3) Consecration of his substance (v. 22).

IV. Jacob's Return to Canaan (chaps. 31-33).

1. The Lord instructs him (31:11-21). Twenty years have elapsed since his experiences at Bethel. These years were spent in Padan-aram with his mother's people. Here he served Laban for twenty years. Though it was the purpose of God for him to return, he took clandestine leave of Laban. Laban pursued him in anger, but God appeared to Laban and forbade him to lay hands upon Jacob.

2. Jacob on the way (Gen. 32).

Though Jacob fled from Laban's pursuit, a more formidable enemy faced him in the person of Esau. (1) Jacob meeting the angels (v. 1). (2) Jacob praying (vv. 9-12). Not receiving a reply from Esau, Jacob cast himself upon God in prayer. (3) The angel wrestling with Jacob (vv. 24-32). He continued to wrestle until the approach of morning, not knowing that it was God in human form wrestling with him. God humbled him by dislocating his thigh. When thus humbled, he quit wrestling and clung to God. He got the blessing when he, conscious of his weakness, laid hold upon God. (4) A new name (v. 28). He was no longer Jacob, the "supplanter," but Israel, a "prince of God." His new name was given him after he had a new nature.

Finding God

If we cannot find God in our house or mine, upon the roadside or the margin of the sea, in the bursting seed or opening flower, in the day duty and the night musing, I do not think we should discern Him more in the grass of Eden or beneath the moonlight of Gethsemane. —James Martineau.

Gratitude to God

Gratitude to God makes even a temporal blessing a taste of heaven. —Romaine.

Blessed are the poor in spirit: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.

Blessed are they that mourn: for they shall be comforted.

Blessed are the meek: for they shall inherit the earth.

Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled.

Blessed are the merciful: for they shall obtain mercy.

Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God.

Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the children of God.

Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness' sake: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.

Blessed are ye, when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake.

Rejoice, and be exceeding glad: for great is your reward in heaven: for so persecuted they the prophets which were before you.—Matthew 5:3-13.

The Lord's Prayer:
Our Father which art in heaven, hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, as in heaven, so on earth. Give us this day our daily bread. WHEN NEW YORK DIRECTORY HAD ONLY 241 TELEPHONES

Half a century ago the Bell Telephone Company of New York issued its first telephone directory in the form of a long narrow slip of paper upon which were printed the names of 241 subscribers in two columns. It was a classified list beginning with "Banks, Bankers and Brokers" and the names of those subscribers were grouped thereunder in alphabetical arrangement with no number designation, for calls were made by name and not by number.

Today the directory situation in New York City alone is a tremendous publishing problem which is becoming more acute each year. As the population increased and the number of telephone subscribers grew it became necessary to issue two volumes and the last edition of the telephone directory filled five volumes, one for each of the Boroughs.

APPLIED FIRST AID GETS AWARD OF MEDAL

A sudden shout went up from a group of men gathered at the end of a pier on the East River in New York. A man was struggling against the treacherous current, and over him loomed the shadow of a barge tied loosely to the pier, and swinging back and forth in the tide, threatening to crush him against the stone foundation of the dock.

Robert Elliott, telephone installer, heard the shout as he was passing the pier and, taking off his coat as he ran, reached the dock and immediately dove into the water, just as the struggling man sank. A few seconds later he appeared at the surface with the drowning man, who was, in due course, drawn up on the dock by a noose which Elliott fastened around his chest.

When Elliott himself mounted by means of a ladder, he saw that the man he had rescued was unconscious, and he applied artificial respiration. By the time an ambulance came, Elliott was administering inhalant to a reviving patient. First aid training had scored again.

ROSE CHAPTER GARDEN NOTES

"What is so rare as a day in June, Then, if ever, comes perfect day." And a perfect day it was for Rose Chapter when they met at the home of Mrs. Vernon Murray.

The honored guest of the day was Mrs. Segel and daughter of California. Mrs. Segel by the way is the charming sister of Mrs. W. W. Kester.

After the meeting was called to order, and all business postponed until our next meeting, the members together with their children went in different cars to the woods at 143rd and Hamelin ave.

A ball game was played and the most sporting feature of the day was a balloon race.

An hour was spent in the study of wild flowers after which a delicious luncheon was served by Mrs. Murry. All members joined in singing that wonderful ballad by Carrie Jacobs Bond "The End of a Perfect Day".

Our next regular meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. W. Asher.

FOURTH OF JULY PICNIC A SUCCESS

The Fourth of July picnic held by the Orland Park M. E. church at the Joseph Creer farm was a decided success. There was a big crowd and everyone had a good time. The program committee composed of George Munch, George Agate and Clarice Mahaffay planned a very interesting program of games. The treasure hunt was the most exciting, after much searching the treasure was found by Miss Iva Hansen.

The ball game in the afternoon was a very close game, score being 11 to 9. The chicken dinner prepared by the committee Mrs. Agate, Mrs. Joseph Creer and Mrs. Roy Newton was enjoyed by all and everyone had all they could eat and as usual there was enough left over for another meal.

RUTH MITCHELL DIES

Miss Ruth Mitchell passed away Monday evening, July 7 at her home in Worth after an illness of about two months. The funeral was held on Thursday afternoon from the Worth Community church, Rev. Paul T. Sanders officiating.

Miss Mitchell without exception, was considered one of the finest young women of Worth. Everyone who knew her was inspired by her fine spirit and happy disposition. She lived to be only 20 years of age but in those twenty years she did more good for humanity than many people who live to be eighty. Her life was full of happiness for other people. She never complained even in her greatest suffering. She has indeed been a help and inspiration to mankind, a true example to everyone that came in contact with her.
